

Seminar-conference «Network of research and technology of education and summer school»

From October 15 to October 19, 2018, a seminar-conference titled «Network of Research and Technology and Summer School» was held at the University of Norway in Bergen in order to attract young scientists to science and ensure their proper direction. The conference was organized by the University of Strasbourg (France), Jakarta State University (Indonesia), the Private University of Linz (Austria), the Technical University of Dresden (Germany) and the University of Bergen (Norway). This conference was attended by a 2-year doctoral student and lecturer of the chair of Pedagogy and Psychology of Abai Kazakh National Pedagogical University Kasimova Gulzhayna.

The main topic discussed at the seminar is «Information communication technologies, digital culture and education and e-learning». Professors from the above-mentioned universities gave lectures on these topics, and they also discussed the scientific work of all participating young scientists. Conference participants returned to their countries with a certificate with 5 ECTS credits.
